

THE ELIM STANDARD

---

What is the Elim Standard?

The Elim Standard has been developed to make sure that all homes owned by the Elim Housing Group meet the same property standard. This standard will exceed the requirements of the Government’s Decent Homes Standard, and sets out Elim’s commitment to providing good quality, well-maintained properties that our customers are proud to call home.

What will the Elim Standard mean to you?

The Standard will become the new measure for all the properties we own. It will set out the condition that you should expect from your home, and we will ask you to tell us if your property does not meet this standard. We are not able to apply the same standard to properties we manage on behalf of other organisations, but we can work with the owners of these properties to make improvements, with their approval.

How will we make sure that your property meets the Elim Standard?

We are currently carrying out a full stock condition survey of all the houses Elim owns. We will use the survey data we collect to carry out a property evaluation assessment. This process will identify which properties already meet the Standard and those that require further investment to bring them up to the Standard. If further investment is needed, these work will be included on our planned improvements programme and we will complete these works in order of priority over the life of the 5 year business plan.

We will also use the Elim standard as a benchmark for new-build properties, or other homes that we consider leasing or managing on behalf of another organisation.
